PREFACE.

The publisher of the St. Paul Census Report and City Directory, in presenting the statistics contained therein to the public, does so with the assurance that he is furnishing the most complete and accurate compilation of the inhabitants of the city ever yet presented for their consideration; and though an occasional error may appear, it must be considered that from the mass of information, business, social, etc., returned by the various reporters for compilation, arises the difficulty of putting matter into proper shape without blunder or mistake. It is believed that this work is as free, however, from errors as it is possible to make one, and that it will meet with the success confidently anticipated when the work was projected.

In the perusal of that portion of this work containing an enumeration of the inhabitants of the city, it may be noticed that many names appear without any census matter; most of these are boarders or roomers whose total is included in and goes to swell that of the person with whom they live. Others again, are non-residents, though doing business in St. Paul, and must be represented, else the usefulness of the work as a director, as well as a statistical record, will have been superseded.

There seemed to be, in the very nature of things, a pressing necessity for a work of this kind right here in the city of St. Paul. Aside from a mere enumeration of the inhabitants, their location, and their business pursuits, its people were desirous of knowing the strides which St. Paul was making in the way of population; something more tangible than the mere "guess work" or "say so" of individuals.

TABLE COMPILED FROM THE CENSUS REPORT,

Showing the nationalities of which St. Paul is composed, arranged in numerical order. It will be seen that the number represented as being born in the United States heads the list, Germany next, Ireland third, Sweden fourth, Canada fifth, etc., etc., the whole footing up the handsome figure of 9,030. This number multiplied by 3, the usual figure on which official Directory publishers base their calculations as to the population of the different cities, gives a result of 27,090 only about 70 in excess of the actual count (see table on preceding page). The result is especially gratifying to the publisher, who has spared no pains in collecting the information for the work. It also speaks in no uncertain tone of the growth and prosperity of the city—a matter in which every citizen has a commendable pride:

These figures and the facts which they disclose must be gratifying, especially to those who remember St. Paul twenty years ago, then struggling to establish itself upon the frontier as a trading post, but now full of bustle and activity; the shrill whistle of the locomotive and the hum of industry taking place of the Indian war-whoop; a city now full of life and business; soon to double her present population, and with a future before her that can be safely trusted to those who have brought her to her present position, The First City in the Northwest.

BUSINESS SKETCH OF ST. PAUL.

Natural advantages, or destiny, as they are sometimes defined by superstitious people—never made a city, and never can! They, undoubtedly, often wield an immense influence, so strong, in fact, as in some instances to entirely sink, or commercially ruin a place; and, yet, natural advantages, when shaped and controlled by shrewd, practical intellect, sometimes produce in a single decade of years, a city of wealth and power, where before was a houseless forest, or desert. St. Paul is a striking example of both of these theories. Its natural advantages are its being near the confluence of the St. Croix, Minnesota and Mississippi rivers, and at the head of navigation on the latter. These chances, in its earliest history, gave the place a start; but for the indomitable energy of her citizens,—through the Chamber of Commerce—the city would have been eclipsed, a few years ago, by St. Anthony, a beautiful locality, unequalled in all America for natural advantages in water-power. In the latter case, natural advantages proved a dead weight! Foreign owners of the immense water-power exclaimed:

“These natural advantages are of so great a necessity that the people cannot do without them! We, consequently, will establish a scale of prices to suit ourselves, and bull the market!”

In the struggle which followed, between natural advantages and enterprise, the latter won; and St. Paul is to-day the acknowledged commercial metropolis of the Northwest—the great market house of the finest wheat garden in the world—the gateway to the Minnesota and St. Croix valleys—the head of navigation on the Mississippi—the railroad centre of the State—the eastern terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad, and the most famous resort of visitors seeking health, pleasure and investment, on the entire continent.

Owing to the sparsely settled country in the immediate vicinity, the retail trade of the place falls far short of that in many Eastern cities of the same size; but the centering of ten railroads already completed, and five more in contemplation, have given St. Paul a WHOLESALE trade of over half a million dollars to every thousand inhabitants; a larger comparative trade than is enjoyed by any other place west of New York city.

As proof that this trade is of the most vigorous and healthy character, realizing for the investors quick and substantial returns, we have but to mention the fact that the Eastern exchange, annually sold by the St. Paul banks, exceeds a million of dollars to every one thousand inhabitants in the city! If any other place in America can make this showing, we have yet to learn it.

As valuable items of information, we give the following brief statistics:

RAILROADS PROJECTED

and which will shortly extend from and into St. Paul, are as follows :

- 1st. The St. Paul & Dubuque.
- 2d. The Chicago & Northwestern.
- 3d. The Davenport & St. Paul.
- 4th. The Northern Wisconsin.
- 5th. The Northern Pacific.

One of the first things that attracts and impresses the minds of intelligent visitors, is the activity of the railroads now in operation ; the passenger and freight business compelling the running of eighty daily trains into and out of the city. This, with about 800 steamboat arrivals during the navigable season, gives the city a busy hum of life and activity, which visitors from the East are but little prepared to witness, but which plainly explains the secret of St. Paul's immense wholesale trade.

The influence of the Northern Pacific Railroad upon the future of St. Paul, is beyond all computation ; as it makes this beautiful city, as a matter of fact, its Eastern terminus. The principal superiority of this road over the Central and Union Pacific, and its most prominent recommendation, is the advantage which it will ever have in the winter season by its freedom from deep snows and excessively cold weather. The road is now in operation about 400 miles ; making its Eastern terminus, ostensibly, at Thompson, on the Lake Superior and Mississippi River Railroad, about twenty-five miles south of the west end of Lake Superior, from which point, about six months in the year, freight from the Pacific Ocean will be taken down to the Lake for water communication to the Atlantic sea-board; but during the other six months—when from its advantages, it is doing its heaviest business—all of its freight and passengers will take the Branch Line at Glyndon—ten miles east of the Red River of the North—and come directly to St. Paul; and from this distributing point debouch for St. Louis, New Orleans, Milwaukee, Chicago or the Eastern cities, as business or inclination may dictate.

ST. PAUL'S GROWTH

has been evener, and less fluctuating than most western cities.

In 1867 the buildings erected cost	$	556,425
" 1868	"	1,005,050
" 1869	"	1,395,727
" 1870	"	1,575,200
" 1871	"	1,735,761

It has very truly been said by an eminent writer, that old fogies are a class of parasites found everywhere; but there are fewer of them in St. Paul than in any other city we ever visited. Here, every man seems to be full of fire, energy and ambition; and all pull together for the wealth, fame and commercial advancement of the city. They have a Chamber of Commerce (consisting of 450 members) that has acquired for itself a national reputation.

A late number of the Nord Stern, an influential German paper, published in La Crosse, Wisconsin, lately had an editorial on the St. Paul Chamber of Commerce, from which we make the following extract:

How to advance local interests, is shown by our sister city of St. Paul. There they have a Chamber of Commerce. So we have in La Crosse. The one at the head of navigation works by a system; that is, it is constantly working systematically for the interests of St. Paul; while our Chamber sadly neglects its duty in this respect. How such marked success is attained in St. Paul is very simple. Mr. Ossian E. Dodge, a very able and efficient scholar, is secured for Secretary. He collects all the statistics of freights by all steamboats and by all railroads, the imports and exports; a full and complete statement of the real estate and commercial business of the city. This information is all carefully collected, compiled and published. If any business man or stranger visits the Secretary at the Chamber, in search of information, he is sure to get all he inquires for. The convenience and importance of this is very clear. Beside this, the Secretary keeps his eyes and ears open, and by the aid of his pen and his immense number of papers regularly received, he keeps constantly posted relative to all the combinations and speculations throughout the entire Northwest. His labors are good evidence that he is the man for the place; and that he gives business strength and business interest to all the great undertakings of St. Paul.

TEMPERATURE OF ST. PAUL.

Want of space forbids our saying as much on this subject as we would like, or as much as we are sure would be interesting and instructive to our readers. The Signal Bureau of the War Department and the Smithsonian Institute (the two highest scientific authorities in America), have, regardless of expense or labor, taken great pains, within the past few years, to ascertain for a certainty, the comparative moisture and temperature of all portions of the United States.

The Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce obtained authentic charts from the above scientific institutions, for the year 1871, of about a dozen different points, located in various latitudes, extending from St. Paul, the farthest North, to Philadelphia; 315 miles south by latitude. These tables Mr. Dodge embodied in his annual report in April, 1872, and they contain an amount of information as surprising as it is valuable. Without space to copy the tables in full—as they contain the mean monthly moisture and temperature of every place on the list—we closely condense a few of the most prominent facts, which we think very clearly prove that the course of the isothermal line at this point is from N. W. to S. E.

The tables for January prove that St. Paul is drier and warmer than any portion of New England; and the same rule holds good throughout the month of February.

In March, St. Paul is drier and cooler than New England, and the atmosphere is clear and bracing; while Eastern cities are afflicted with intermittent showers, freezings, thaws and “snow broths.”

In April, St. Paul takes the lead in moisture and warmth even surpassing Philadelphia in the latter respect.

In May, St. Paul is *damp*er than the average of places within 300 miles of the same latitude, and again leads the entire list for warmth; surpassing Philadelphia by nine degrees.

In June, St. Paul has even an moisture and an exceedingly pleasant warmth in advance of all places within about 200 miles of this latitude.

In July, St. Paul is far behind in moisture, but retains its prominence for warmth.

In August, St. Paul has a warmth and moisture which places it on a par with the average towns within a latitude of about 150 miles.

In September, St. Paul has a warmth and dryness in advance of all place within about 100 miles of the same latitude.

In October, St. Paul is a trifle colder, and a great deal drier than any locality within 300 miles of this latitude.

In November, the peculiarities of the preceeding month are continued in even an increased ratio, and St. Paul, although from one to seven degrees colder than other towns within 100 miles of this latitude, stands out without a rival for dryness of atmosphere.

In December, St. Paul, though again colder by from four to twenty degrees than other places within 200 miles of the same high latitude, stands out pre-eminently alone and unequalled for dryness of atmosphere, and clear, bracing, invigorating climate.

In reviewing the tables for the entire year, we clearly see the key to St. Paul's wonderful success in growth, fame and wealth. The humidity and warmth of this portion of the State in April and May, virtually converts the soil into a teeming hot-house; and the season leaps, as it were, by one bound from the icy lap of Winter, as retained in March, to the warm loving embrace of voluptuous Summer, as represented by a New England June.

The superior quality in size, fullness, weight, gluten and flavor of Minnesota Spring wheat has for years attracted the attention of wheat buyers in Eastern markets; and its wonderful excellence can only be accounted for by the steady warm moisture of the air and soil during the few succeeding months after the grain is sown, and its complete ripening in Nature's Hot-House.

As incontrovertible evidence on this point, is the fact well-known among leading bakers, that the nutritious gluten in Minnesota wheat, enables them to add ten more pounds of water to each barrel than to that from any other State in the Union. This dilution to every hundred barrels, gives the bakers a clean profit of one thousand pounds of bread without any additional labor, a profit to which they are fully entitled, and which they freely acknowledge without hesitation.

THE FREE READING ROOM.

Among the many prominent features of St. Paul for which she is justly famous throughout the length and breadth of the United States and Canada, is the Free Reading Room, originated and conducted by Ossian E. Dodge, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

For number of papers (daily, weekly and monthly) regularly received and filed, the room is said to have no equal in either this country or Europe. And yet this has all been effected by the untiring labor, energy and generosity of but one man.

Mr. Dodge is in the receipt of about three hundred papers weekly; for which no one but himself has ever contributed one dime in personal influence, cash or correspondence. The room is made free to all visitors, male and female, and people here assemble and daily read the papers from all the leading cities of this country and Europe.

This room has unquestionably made more friends for St. Paul among weary and careworn travelers, than any other institution in the State, and many a weary and homesick invalid has here had his aching heart warmed to cheerfulness by daily reading the local news in his home paper. Through the influence of grateful travelers—many of them editors—the room has been handsomely complimented in nearly 500 different newspapers; one writer in a Southern journal, calling it the “essence of hospitality,” and saying that “the St. Paul merchants have a larger number of papers in their Free Reading Room, than can be found in any other one room in the world; thus daily extending to hundreds of weary travelers, a genuine hospitality, and proving that kind politeness among strangers is first cousin to christianity.”

This well-known and popular Hotel, the pride of St. Louis, is located in the center of the business portion of the Mound City, near the wholesale houses and convenient to all the Railroad ticket offices, Telegraph offices and opposite the Court House; the Theatres, Concert Halls, and other fashionable places of amusement are in the vicinity. Omnibuses and carriages are always found at the Railroad depots and Steamboat landings to carry guests to and from the Hotel. Be sure and state that you are going to the Laclede. Capt. Malin, late of the Memphis Packet Co.'s steamer, City of Cairo, and for ten years Captain of the Keokuk Packet Co.'s popular boats, will always be found around the Hotel with his cheerful countenance to give the weary traveler a welcome reception; and with such a gentlemanly corps of accommodating clerks, the reputation of the Laclede will never grow less.—(EDITOR.)

MOBILE & OHIO RAILROAD.

The Main Stem of this Road extends from

Mobile, Ala., to Columbus, Ky.,

A DISTANCE OF 472 MILES.

IT HAS THE FOLLOWING BRANCHES:

GAINSVILLE BRANCH, from Gainsville Junction to Gainsville, Ala.,
21 miles.

COLUMBUS BRANCH, from Artesia to Columbus, Miss., 14 miles.

ABERDEEN BRANCH, from Aberdeen Junction to Aberdeen City, 9 miles.

CONNECTIONS.

AT MOBILE—With the Mobile and Montgomery and New Orleans, Mobile and Texas Railroads.

AT MERIDIAN—With the Alabama and Chattanooga Railroad.

AT CORINTH—With the Memphis and Charleston Railroad.

AT JACKSON, TENN.—With the Mississippi Central Railroad.

AT HUMBOLDT—With Memphis and Louisville Line.

AT TROY—With the Paducah and Gulf Railroad.

AT UNION CITY—With Nashville and Northwestern Railroad.

AT COLUMBUS, KY.—With Illinois Central and St. Louis and Iron Mountain Railroads.

AT CAIRO—By the Illinois Central Railroad Transfer Steamer.

This Road is laid with a rail weighing 68 lbs. per yard, with the best Fish Bar Joint Fastening in this country, which prevents the rattling, jarring noise on other roads, and makes it, for smoothness and ease of motion, unsurpassed by any road in this country. It makes close connections with all the great lines North and West, and has fewer changes of cars than any Line between the Gulf of Mexico and the Eastern, Northern and Western Cities.

It has Through Ticket and Freight arrangements with all connecting Lines to all important points. But one trans-shipment of Freight is required between New York, Philadelphia or Baltimore and New Orleans, Mobile or Selma.

The Company owns more than a Million Acres of Land along its Road, set with the best Pine Timber, and well adapted to the cultivation of Vegetables and Fruits, which can be transported by Fast Freight Trains to the North and West.

Fruits and Vegetables will mature two months sooner than in the latitude of St. Louis, and will therefore command the high prices of the first of the season in the cities of Louisville, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Chicago, and smaller places on the Railroad and Rivers. These lands are for sale in lots to suit purchasers.
